COMING OF PROHIBITION WILL NOT FIND THIRSTY ONES WITH SHORT SUPPLY

Whether war-time prohibition scheduled to become effective July 1, is repealed or not some Fayette countians including not a few who call Connellsville home are going to be supplied for a long time to come with John Barleycorn in one form or another In numerous instances the stores being laid in against the days of drouth run in value into many thousands of dollars It is not a secret that at least four Uniontown men have accumulated private stores valued at $10 000 each At present costs these amounts do not represent anything like the quantity of liquor that could have been purchased for so much money before the war but still the barrels and cases and bottles put away represent many and many a nip long after the manufacture of the beverage has ceased

Uniontown is no alone in stocking up Connellsville cellars have barrels and barrels of it hidden away reports say Perfectly good Liberty and Victory bonds have in some instances been converted into liquor stocks As the first day o July aproaches the investment in King Alcohol will increase There is little danger it is believed of the hotels having excessively large stocks on hand when 9 o clock P M of June 30 arrives and the bars are closed perhaps for all time Some are selling now at reduced prices it is said.

To the graduates he said he wanted if possible to get them to see that they get all out of life what they put in no more, no less

"You who would gather in the wealth that lies in the Connellsville high school must first taste to it and the teachers there your wealth in exchange The success of the senior class depends not on the faculty, or the board of education or on the community but on each member of the class Touching on the recent war, Dr. Davidson declared America was through with the German system of learning We want no exaltation of the German system in America he said Away with it forever We want none of it in our institutions or in our industries. Germany will never again camouflage the world with its false ideas of education"

Dr Davidson also presented the diplomas to the graduates, this honor being conferred upon him by C Roy Hetzel president of the school board.

The valedictory was delivered by Miss Ruth Higbee honor student. Her subject was "The Duty of Today" She spoke of the reconstruction made necessary on account of the war and the necessity for America to take up the work of making good citizens out of the immigrants

The conception of democracy is formed in the public schools she declared Therefore we must more strictly enforce the compulsory school law if we are going to teach Americanism through the schools

The immigrant must be made to realize that when he becomes a citizen of America he has the power of liberty In return for this he must learn to love and protect this country which has given him the joy of living

Speaking for the class of 1919 Miss Higbee extended its thanks and esteem to the teachers who have over their claims, a creditors' committee was organized. On this committee were A. R. Hamilton and A. C. Robinson, bankers of Pittsburg; Edward T. Hitchman, coal operator of Wheeling, W. Va.; James A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company at Youngstown, O.; A. Plumer Austin and G. S. Harah of Uniontown. On August 20, 1917, Mr. Thompson filed an application in voluntary bankruptcy, and the following trustees were named: Attorney D. M. Hertzog, Uniontown; R. M. Hite, coal operator of Fairmont, W. Va., and George R. Schrugham of Cincinnati, O., secretary of the creditors' committee. The final consummation of the deal is almost wholly due to the untiring efforts of the trustees, assisted by Mr. Thompson himself, and the creditors' committee.

Included in the Thompson properties sold are three mansions. Oak Hill, a mansion just outside of Uniontown, appraised at $423,000; Friendship Hill, the former residence of Albert Gallatin, near New Geneva, at $125,000, and Linger Longer, the former country home of the late Captain Sam Brown, near Chalk Hill, at $120,000.

On February 14, 1919, Mr. Thompson was discharged from bankruptcy and since that time is well on his way toward another fortune, he having been interested in several deals which netted him substantial amounts.

Appraisers Julian Kennedy and R. C. Crawford of Pittsburg, and R. M. Hite of Fairmont, W. Va., on June 8, 1915, placed an appraised value of $65,367,778.05 on the Thompson properties. The principal items of the appraisement follows: Greene county holdings, 58,403.79 acres valued at $32,617,900.50; Fayette county, 736 acres of coal and 7,877.49 acres of surface valued at $2,646,506; Washington county, 10,172.20 acres valued at $3,150,186; West Virginia holdings, 72,103.03 acres valued at $18,868,841.55; stocks, bonds, mortgages and notes valued at $6,099,619.40 and plant and factory sites in Allegheny, Armstrong and Beaver counties, Pennsylvania, valued at $1,657,500.

taught them throughout their school years, and expressed the gratitude of the students for their sacrifices. To the people of the city who support a school and school system she extended the appreciation of the class. To the graduates she said, "I appeal to you to be true Americans, true to your responsibilities, true men and true women."

Miss Hester McCarnes, second honor student, spoke on "Remaking the Soldier for Peace." Her statistical references were excellent and she gave much data on what the government is doing to remake the disabled soldier.

"America has not failed her boys," she said. "The government foresaw the situation and started the work back on the battlefields. Schools for training disabled men have been established and instructions along various lines is being given. The soldier is made to feel he is a man among men in spite of his physical disability."

The first topic of the evening was delivered by Miss Ruth Miller, who spoke on Woman's Work." She recalled the magnificent part women had played in the recent war and the way in which Congress had recognized the women for their part by passing the equal suffrage resolution.

"American women must set the example to the other women in the world," she said. She also told of the battle women are waging all over the country for social progress and the establishment of women's clubs through which to accomplish this.

The invocation was pronounced by Rev. G. L. C. Richardson and the benediction delivered by Rev. I. G. Nace.

MUST SECURE PERMITS

Persons Cleaning Cesspools Are Liable to Arrest.

Persons on the South Side who have outside closets and cesspools are warned by the city authorities and the board of health not to clean out these places until they have received permits from the proper source. If the practice of cleaning closets without permits continues, arrests will be made.

Complaints have been made by residents of the South Side that persons there who are not connected to the city sewage lines are cleaning their closets and cesspools at night. This is much to the annoyance of persons in the vicinity, especially of the hot nights, when people sleep with windows open.

The ordinance provides that closets or cesspools cannot be cleaned without a permit and also names certain months in which this cleaning must be done. It is also compulsory that when persons are living within 50 feet of a sewage line a connection must be made with it.

The garbage company hauled a dead horse away from the Yough bridge Thursday. The owner of the animal is not known by the health authorities. The horse is said to have dropped dead while it was being ridden across the bridge and its owner left it where it fell.

Many persons, seeing the dead animal and the damaged automobile of D. H. Turner, which had been struck at the bridge approach by a street car, thought the automobile had collided with the horse and killed it.

New Things in Costume Jewelry

The charm of novelty belongs to "costume jewelry," which is chosen for the sake of color or because it accentuates a style in dress, or merely because it is smart and fashionable. However fine and beautiful real jewels may be their owners tire of always wearing the same pieces and take to passing fads with as much relish as if they were jewelless. Just now there is a vogue for necklaces and beads of all kinds, with Chinese and East Indian designs featured among numberless others, including old Venetian and American Indian ideas.

In costume jewelry, that is jewelry which is not made of precious metals or stones, there is one abiding favorite, and that is the necklace of good pearl beads. Other things may come and go, but they go on forever, because they are so like the beautiful genuine pearls. Good, even strands of pearl beads cost more now than in days before the war, but there is a great range in prices for them, depending upon color, luster, degree of destructibility and the evenness with which the beads are strung.

The handsomest Chinese beads, of imitation jade and carved ivory and of composition, or glass, are often strung on very handsome silk cord. The strand usually supports a large medallion of carved ivory or jade, or whatever material makes the bead, with some mystic figure or character wrought in it which looks equal to warding off bad luck and is probably intended to make its wearer feel secure. Very handsome and brilliant jet beads, sometimes alternating with sparkling crystal beads on the string, have many admirers among older women, while smooth white coral, or white splashed with pale pink, are liked for girls and young women. Everyone envies the owner of a strand of carved ivory beads and next to everyone wears a necklace of the most brilliant red in opaque beads, of all sizes and shapes. The color of every jewel under the sun is imitated in glass beads and in mock jewels set in metal and joined by metal chains. Among these women find the necklace that matches their frocks or those that provide a contrasting color touch. Happy she is who has among her possessions a strand of amber beads, and thrice blessed is the owner of a necklace of opals. Then, the strands of gold or silver beads which one sees so rarely, are again in favor, for these have their imitations that answer the purpose of costume jewelry. It would not be easy to find a style of jeweled neck chain or necklace which is not now represented.

This eloquent neighborhood endorsement of the famous family tonic which Ream's drug store continues to have an unprecedented demand for in Morgantown is of marked interest and value.

Ream's Drug Store—"Suffered from a general nervous breakdown. Could not sleep night or day. My circulation was poor and my arms often became numb. At times I was nearly wild from loss of sleep and nervousness. My daughter induced me to try Nerv-Worth. So far I have taken two bottles. Sleeplessness and nervousness are now things of the past. NEW TELEPHONE RATES

Local Service Rates

The costs of telephone operation have been rising steadily during the past few years. And now, despite the fact that every possible economy has been introduced, a point has been reached where telephone revenues in Pennsylvania are not sufficient to meet expenses and to provide a reasonable return upon the investment. The situation compels an increase in telephone revenues.

The Company prepared and submitted to the United States Telegraph & Telephone Administration a revised schedule of rates for local service in Pennsylvania which, after careful consideration, was approved by the Federal Authorities and will become effective June 16, 1919.

Accordingly, all rates for local exchange service in Pennsylvania (except local messages originating at public telephones) will be increased 20% June 16, 1919.

Toll Service Rates

On January 21, 1919, new schedules of toll and long distance rates were established throughout the country by order of the Postmaster General. The application of these schedules to messages originating and terminating within Pennsylvania was set aside on January 29, 1919, by order of a Pennsylvania Court.

The Supreme Court of the United States on June 2 confirmed the authority of the Postmaster General to regulate all telephone rates. Consequently, the Pennsylvania Court on June 11, 1919 dissolved its injunction of January 29, 1919.

The new rates, therefore, will be applied to all toll and long distance messages from and after May 21, 1919, the beginning of the current toll billing period. All telephone directories issued since January 1 contain the new schedules and an explanation of them. Please consult the front pages of your directory, so that you may be familiar with the various classes of toll service that we offer.

WORK OF THE THOMPSON TRUSTEES.

That the long continued efforts of the trustees and also of the creditors' committee in bankruptcy of the estate of J. V. Thompson have resulted in a private sale, the details of which are being closed today, is a most fortunate and happy circumstance. For a period of several years these interests have labored untiringly to conserve this property, not in behalf of Mr. Thompson alone, as has at times been ungraciously charged, but in the interests of hundreds of persons associated with him as joint owners and, indeed, in the interests of all the owners of coal lands in Southwestern Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia. In the accomplishment of this purpose the trustees have had to meet a stubborn opposition and to overcome almost every conceivable kind of obstacle, instead of being given a helpful cooperation in achieving an object of great vital concern to our business and industrial life.

The trustees and all thoughtful persons have realized that if the holdings of this great estate were thrown upon the market under a forced sale, there would follow such a general impairment of the value of coal lands, and the depreciation of securities based upon coal, that would have resulted in the bankruptcy of hundreds of persons. At the same time the orderly development and progress of the coal and coke industry in the Greene county extension of the Connellsville region would have been disrupted so seriously that years would be required to restore it to normal and with consequent great loss in capital and effort. Incidentally other lines of business and other groups of individuals would have suffered from what would have been little short of a financial panic.

Through their persistence and determination to conserve a great property and to safeguard the interests of all persons who might be directly or indirectly interested or affected thereby, the trustees have rendered a great service to the business interests of this section of the state, as well as having accomplished what has at many times appeared to be an almost hopeless, if not also impossible, task.

By having stabilized coal land values, upon which business and industry of this and adjoining counties are founded, a substantial basis for future prosperity has been assured which would not have been possible to maintain had the trustees of the Thompson estate been less successful in their efforts or less faithful to their trust.

The suspicion prevails in some quarters that if the peace negotiations are prolonged sufficiently Germany will be dictating all the terms.

That the Thompson coal land deal came to a close on Friday, the 13th, ought forever to break the superstition that this day and date form a hoodoo for the people of Fayette and Greene counties.

Dawson, Dickerson Run and Vanderbilt are not making much noise but they have been making some well arranged plans for the soldiers' homecoming celebration, which is the down-river way of doing things.

Without waiting for prices to go down Dunbar is making a praiseworthy effort to dress up so as to be ready to greet greater prosperity when that welcome guest arrives.

Here's hoping Connellsville's newest enterprise will be able to both send up and keep in the air many of its products without itself going the way all too many of our undertakings have gone.

Short weighing in ice might not be so bad if it kept customers cool, but unfortunately it has the opposite effect and in about the same proportion as the weight is shortened.

The Dunbar township road supervisors are giving the whole county a real demonstration in quick and good road building.

You are a poor excuse of a father if you are not willing to invest $1 in your boy by taking an associate Boy Scout membership.

President Wilson's Great Opportunity

Manufacturers Record, Baltimore.

The social unrest throughout the world, running into Bolshevism, is a menace the magnitude of which cannot be overstated. It would be a vain delusion to imagine that this Bolshevistic tendency cannot make headway in America. It can do so and is doing so. The agitators of the doctrine of hate who are stirring up the people everywhere must be met by the most tremendous effort of those who see the danger. Business men, preachers and teachers need to realize their responsibility and to do all in their power to educate the public to the danger of this socialistic upheaval. President Wilson in this emergency has an opportunity such as that possessed by no other man. His responsibility to help to allay this unrest is as great as his opportunity.

Unfortunately for this nation, the carpet-baggers who flooded the South after the Civil War and misled the negroes and made them distrust and eventually hate the white people are typified by unscrupulous labor agitators and politicians who seek to arouse class hatred in order to ride into power on the spirit of evil let loose. The politician, high or low, who panders to the labor vote by stirring up the passions of hatred and lauds to the skies the so-called workingmen (when all honest men are working men, whether they work with their brain or their brawn) is on a par with the worst of the disreputable carpet-baggers who came near wrecking the Anglo-Saxon civilization of South. Those scoundrels, who cared nothing whatever for the negro except for what use they could make of him, sowed the seeds of evil in the minds of 4,000,000 negroes just out of slavery, the harvest from which both races have been reaping ever since. The politicians who stir up the so-called labor element and who give countenance to the rank socialistic trend of the times are doing their utmost to bring forth a harvest of Bolshevism and anarchy. These men are sowing the seeds of hatred and the world will reap a harvest of sorrow and death from their work.

President Wilson has a great opportunity to mold the minds and hearts of the laboring people into right thinking and right acting, for they regard him as their friend and leader. It is within his power to have an almost magical effect in rightly guiding this element if on every possible occasion he will appeal to the better judgment of the laboring people.

What miracles President Wilson can work if he will turn his powers to awaken men everywhere to do their utmost! His voice would go farther than that of the labor agitators. He can stem the tide of socialism, which leads to Bolshevism and anarchy. In this respect the responsibility resting upon him is fully as great as that of his position at the Peace Conference, perhaps even greater, for the world's social unrest and the tendency to socialism and anarchy have developed problems which are as tremendous for possible evil as the dangers of the Peace Conference.

If President Wilson will lead the force of right against the socialistic tendency of the hour and drive out of power the many rank socialists now too much in evidence in Washington he will do much to save the world from anarchy.

The business men of the world, including nearly all the large employers of labor, have for years, and long before the war, been giving much thought to the bettering of labor conditions, to provide better housing facilities, and to eliminate the dangers from machinery. The war has intensified their work. It has helped to broaden their efforts for the amelioration of living conditions, and in this country and abroad employers are, with rare exceptions, not only willing, but eager to see good wages continue.

It is well, therefore, that the employers, fully recognizing these facts, have taken the lead in the work of humanizing labor and benefiting the laborer, but the laborers led by demagogic agitators are in danger of being misled to their own destruction. They have heard the voice of the agitator and the politician proclaiming that the world rests upon them, and that they must dominate and control all things. Many of them have been made to believe that honesty and efficiency in service are not needed.

President Wilson could have a tremendous influence in stemming this line of thought if aggressively he would throw himself into the struggle against the socialistic tendency of the hour and would unceasingly proclaim to the laboring man, whether he work on the farm or in the factory, in the office or in the store, that without honesty in thought and act, without untiring efficiency in work, no man has a right to success.

President Wilson's opportunity is before him, an opportunity greater than any which he has faced in his whole career.

Buy a Ready Cut House

This is often the advice given the home seekers by a well meaning but misinformed friends, who honestly believes that by so doing he will SAVE SEVERAL HUNDRED DOLLARS. But the real fact of the matter is, that by buying a ready cut house from some distant concern, THE PURCHASER IS MADE TO BELIEVE he has saved money, when in reality he has not saved, but has lost money. Let us take for example a nice bungalow, sold by Lewis Mfg. Co., Bay City, Michigan, called The Almaeda. This house comes ready cut, even to having doors mortised for locks and hinges set. Lewis price F. O. B. Bay City, Mich., $1,695.00. We have learned that the freight on a ready cut house now being erected on Isabella Road from Bay City to Connellsville was only $48.35. BUT THE ADVANCE CHARGES FROM FACTORY TO BAY CITY, which the purchaser has no way of learning until after arrival of material, supposing it to be shipped directly from Bay City and not first to Bay City, was $97.55, making a total freight charge of $145.90. This added to the price of the Almaeda, $1,695.00, makes total cost of the Almaeda $1,840.90. We estimate cost of unloading at $30.00, or one day with a good truck and two men, $1,780.90. He must then buy lumber to build a shed to store his doors, sash, finish lumber, nails, paint and hardware, or have it broken; stolen and ruined from rain and sun while he is waiting for building to be erected.

HE MUST BUY THE LUMBER TO ERECT THIS SHED mind you, for all lumber for building is cut to fit and if used for any other purpose is ruined. The Lewis Co., claim that four men should complete the carpenter work to the Almaeda in twenty-one working days. (Don't mention how many hours per day). Four times twenty-one is eighty-four days; according to our rule of 8 hours per day, would be 672 hours, and at the price agreed upon per hour with the Union Carpenters of Connellsville of $1.00 per hour, would be $672.00 added to price of the Almaeda and freight, $1,870.90, making a total cost of the Almaeda of $2,542.90. Cost of erecting shed for doors, sash, etc., $50.00, making a grand total of $2,592.90.

As a matter of fact, there is one man in Connellsville who has figured the material and labor to erect the Almaeda and will absolutely guarantee to furnish all the material the Lewis Mfg. Co. agree to furnish and deliver it just as you want it for $1,683.96, will furnish labor to complete all carpenter work for $589.24, making a total cost for the Almaeda of $2,273.20, thus saving you $319.70 and you don't have to pay me in advance either.

PONY THE SIZE OF BELGIAN HARE IS PECHIN CURIOSITY

Tiny Animal is Possession of Robert Brown, Superintendent of Oakmont Farm.

Special to The Courier.

PECHIN, June 14—Robert Brown, superintendent of mines for the United Refractory company on Oakmont farm at Ferguson, is the proud possessor of a pony colt that is attracting much attention. The colt is a little larger than a Belgian hare and almost as spry. He brought it down with its mother to Pechin last Saturday and soon had a large audience of interested spectators. Persons living along Ferguson road left their work as the pony and colt passed to see the curiosity. But Mr. Brown is not the only one thus favored. Fred C. Smith of Hardy Hill, a West Penn man, has a mother pony and foal, and the Smith colt is attracting as much attention in that section as the Brown colt is in he Ferguson disrict.

THINK BEFORE YOU SPEND

Wouldn't It be Better to Save for Something Worth While?

We all spend too much for trifles that we really do not need. Nine times out of ten it would be better to save the money for something of lasting value—a home, for instance, which in these days of high rents is a mighty good investment. Liberal interest is paid on savings at the First National Bank and an account may be opened with any sum from $1 up.—Adv.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"SPEEDY MEADE"—A five part Goldwyn feature in which Louis Bennison is being presented in a splendid role is today's feature attraction. Mr. Bennison is seen as a federal inspector, who disguises and runs down his man with ease and skill. When he arrives on the scene of a murder he is disguised as a cowboy and after securing the information that he desires he assumes the role of an old ranchman and goes to the headquarters of a gang of rustlers with some cattle to sell. He learns the name of the leader of the gang and also that he is the father of the girl he admires. It later develops that the man is the uncle of Mary Dillman, and has been using the money left her by her real father for his own advantage. Katherine MacDonald appears opposite Mr. Bennison. A selected comedy is also being shown. Monday and Tuesday Anita Stewart will be presented in "A Midnight Romance," a delightful First National production under the direction of Lois Weber. The grand ensemble of the ballroom is one of the best ever shown on the screen, and it is shown at an angle that makes it a veritable moving tableau of beauty. Interest in the story is held by the truly feminine means by which a woman sustains interest in her own personality, by revealing only enough of it to execute further curiosity. Miss Stewart is assisted by Jack Holt, Edward Tilton, and other screen players of prominence.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"DAUGHTER OF MINE"—The new Goldwyn picture, in which Madge Kennedy is seen, is an interesting attraction today. The story is that of little Rosie Mendelsohn, daughter of the tenements, and Papa Mendelsohn, an Orthodox Jew, who does not approve of Rosie's poet sweetheart because he is too modern—because he uses a typewriter. After much persuasion he induces Rosie to send George away, and Rosie, because filial love is uppermost in her nature, tries to forget. She becomes a stenographer to Rayberg, a publisher, who is partly in love with her and consents to listen to a wonderful story, the manuscript of which Rosie declares she found in the subway. In reality she has typed from memory all she can remember from George's novel. Her version is absurd, just the sort of a thing a sentimental girl would write. As she tells the story Rosie becomes the heroine, Lady Diantha, and all the other characters becomes the people she knows best—Papa Mendelsohn, Rayberg himself and George. It is all part of a clever scheme which results in an unexpected climax and brings George back to Rosie. A selected comedy is also being shown. Monday Viola Dana, the delightful little star, will be seen in "False Evidence."

CELEBRATION SAFETY PLANS ARE SHAPING

Committee in Charge Organizes With Clyde G. Brehm at Its Head.

OTHERS ADDED TO LIST

Pittsburg Concern Offers to Donate Part of Hospital Equipment; Signs Will be Erected Along Line of Parade to Give Publicity to the Route.

The public safety committee for the home-coming celebration met Thursday in council chamber and organized, with Clyde G. Brehm, safety engineer for the Oliver & Snyder Steel company, as chairman, all committees to work under him. The committee was increased from three to six in number, the following additional men being named: F. C. Smith, safety engineer for the West Penn Power company here; Jesse Cypher, representing the volunteer firemen, and R. C. Witt, scout commissioner.

A committee composed of Mr. Brehm and J. S. Darr was appointed to call on Dr. T. B. Echard, and ask if he would donate the use of part of the South Side hospital during the celebration. It was decided that the committee go before the city council and ask for official authorization for Mr. Brehm as having the power to control the city during the celebration as far as the safety end was concerned.

The Mine Safety Appliance company of Pittsburg has volunteered to donate hospital equipment and one attendant during the celebration. It was was thought best to accept the offer. A committee composed of Mr. Cypher and Mr. Witt was appointed to secure rope for the purpose of roping off the streets during the celebration. The committee will rope Pittsburg street from Peach street to Lincoln avenue, and Crawford avenue from the Elks' Home to Arch street.

Signs will be painted and erected all along the parade route in the near future to familiarize the people with the route. Arrangements will be made also to have the music stretched out along the line of march in order that the people on the outskirts of the route will enjoy the music as well as those who are in the main part of the city.

It was suggested that the committee ask the assistance of the South Connellsville volunteer firemen during the celebration. The committee will meet every Thursday evening in the city hall and on Tuesday evening will report the progress of their meeting to the central committee.

DEATH FOR BOMBERS PROVIDED IN BILL BEFORE CONGRESS

Another Measure Would Provide for Deportation of Aliens Who Prove to Be Disloyal.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Bills designed to bring to an end of the activities in this country of radical agitators have been introduced by Representative Aswell, Democrat, of Louisana. One of the measures would provide that any person not a citizen of the United States who should attempt to destroy life or property by use of an infernal machine or other means should be deemed guilty of a felony and upon conviction be sentenced to be executed.

Deportation of aliens who withdraw their declaration of intention to become citizens of the United States to escape military service during the war or who advocated disrespect of the American flag is provided in the other bill.

Already a number have signified their intention of motoring down. There have been four delegates appointed to attend the convention. S. R. Goldsmith and H. G. Batten were elected to attend the Great review and C. F. Knight and Martin Rottler to attend the Home Association convention to be held on July 7.

All of the former conventions have been limited to 100 delegates but by a special dispensation each tent has been given direct representation to this convention. Inasmuch as there are 400 tents in Pennsylvania the attendance will be from one to two thousand.

DAVIDSON WANTS GAMES

Players Not Engaged at Daily Work and Anxious to Play.

Davidson ball players are in gloom today. They wanted a game for this afternoon and had challenged any team in the county to meet on the Davidson lot or elsewhere but no answers came. The challenge is therefore renewed. Managers wanting games are asked to communicate with Manager Robert King or let the fact be known through The Courier.

The boys are idle a goodly part of the time. They worked hard during the week getting the diamond and backstop in shape and were counting on a game for today.

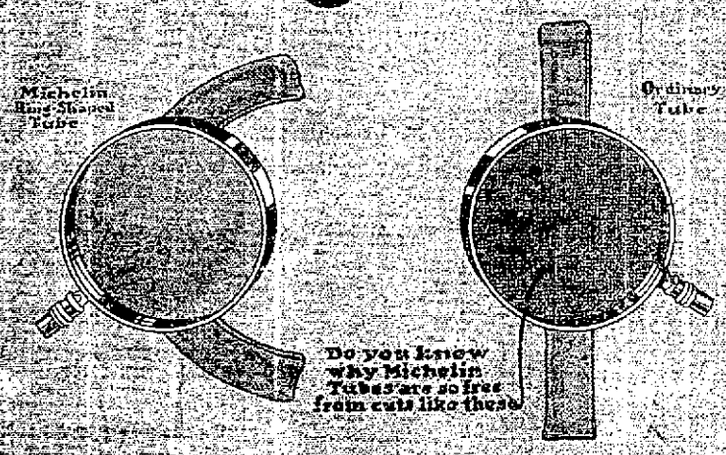
MICHELIN Toughness



Many experienced motorists use Michelin Tubes because they have noticed that small stones and particles of dirt which get inside tires do not cut Michelin Tubes as they do other makes.

This superiority of Michelin Tubes is due to their unequalled toughness—which you can test for yourself by cutting such old tubes as you may have or can borrow from your tire dealer. You will find Michelin Tubes far more difficult to cut than other makes. In fact, you will find it almost impossible to cut Michelin Tubes even with a sharp knife.

This superior toughness is one of several reasons why Michelin Tubes give the unequalled service that has made them the choice of the great majority of motorists.

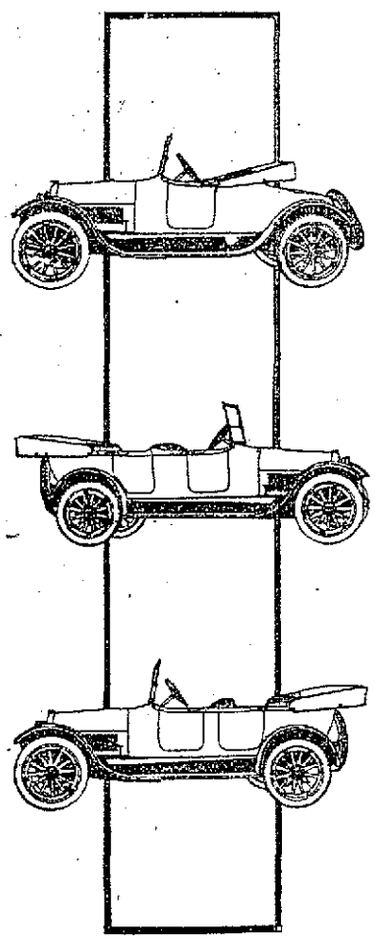
Buick
VALVE-IN-HEAD MEANS BUICK



THE Buick Valve-in-Head motor is, first of all, a clean-cut motor. It acts cleanly, it concentrates, it becomes more efficient—because the cylinders of this motor are true cylinders—they have no side-pockets, no by-ways through which to lose power.

The full force of the explosion acts on the piston-head, where it conserves power. After each piston stroke the cylinders clear themselves of dead gas, so that they are filled with all fresh gas for each succeeding explosion.

PIECES of EIGHT

BEING THE AUTHENTIC NARRATIVE OF A TREASURE DISCOVERED IN THE BAHAMA ISLANDS IN THE YEAR 1909—NOW FIRST GIVEN TO THE PUBLIC.

By Richard Le Gallienne

COPYRIGHT BY DOUBLEDAY PAGE & COMPANY

But, looking about, I found another natural tunnel in the side of the hill. Into this I was able to worm myself, and in the dim light found the old man and put my flask to his lips.

"Anything broken, do you think?"

Tom didn't think so. He had evidently been stunned by his fall, and another pull at my flask set him on his feet. But as I helped him up, and, striking a light, we began to look around the hole he had tumbled into, he gave a piercing shriek and fell on his knees, jabbering with fear.

"The ghosts! the ghosts!" he screamed.

And the sight that met our eyes was certainly one to try the nerves. Two figures sat at a table—one with his hat tilted slightly and one leaning sideways in his chair in a careless sort of attitude. They seemed to be playing cards, and they were strangely white—for they were skeletons.

I stood hushed, while Tom's teeth rattled at my side. The fantastic awe of the thing was beyond telling. And then, not without a qualm or two, which I would be a liar to deny, I went and stood nearer to them. Nearly all their clothes had fallen away, hanging but in shreds here and there. That the hat had so jauntily kept its place was one of those grim touches Death, that terrible humorist, loves to add to his jests. The cards which had apparently just been dealt, had suffered scarcely from decay—only a little dirt had sifted down upon them, as it had into the rum glasses that stood, too, at each man's side. And as I looked at the skeleton jauntily facing me, I noticed that a bullet hole had been made as clean as if by a drill in his forehead of bone—while turning to examine more closely his silent partner, I noticed a rusty sailor's knife hanging from the ribs where the lungs had been. Then I looked on the floor and found the key to the whole story. For there, within a few yards, stood a heavy sailor's chest, strongly bound around with iron. Its lid was thrown back and a few coins lay scattered at the bottom, while a few lay about on the floor. I picked them up.

They were pieces of eight!

Meanwhile Tom had stopped jabbering and had come nearer looking on in awed silence. I showed him the pieces of eight.

"I guess these are all we'll see of one John P. Tobias' treasure, Tom," I said. And it looks as if these poor fellows saw as little of it as ourselves. Can't you imagine them with it there at their feet—perhaps playing to divide it on a gamble, and meanwhile the other fellows stealing in through some of these rabbit runs—one with a knife, the other with a gun—and then off with the loot and up with the sails. Poor devils! It strikes me as a very pretty tragedy—doesn't it you?"

Suddenly—perhaps with the vibration of our voices—the hat toppled off the head of the fellow facing us in the most weird and comical fashion—and that was too much for Tom, and he screamed and made for the exit hole.

I Waited a Minute to Replace the Hat on the Rakish One's Head.

But I waited a minute to replace the hat on the rakish one's head. As I was likely often to think of him in the future I preferred to remember him at the moment of our first strange acquaintance.

Book II.

CHAPTER I.

Once More in John Saunders' Snuggery.

Need I say that it was a great occasion when I was once more back safe in John Saunders' snuggery, telling my story to my two friends, John and Charlie Webster, all just as if I had never stirred from my easy chair, instead of having spent an exciting month or so among sharks, dead men, blood-lapping ghosts, card-playing skeletons and such like?

My friends listened to my yarn in characteristic fashion, John Saunders' eyes like mice peeping out of a cupboard, and Charlie Webster's huge bulk poised almost threatening, as it were, with the keenness of his attention. His deep-set kind brown eyes glowed like a boy's as I went on, but by their dangerous kindling at certain points of the story, those dealing with our pockmarked friend, Henry P. Tobias, Jr., I soon realized where, for him, the chief interest of the story lay.

"The —— rebel!" he roared out once or twice, using an adjective peculiarly English.

For him my story had but one moral—the treason of Henry P. Tobias, Jr. The treasure might as well have had no existence, so far as he was concerned, and the grim climax in the cave drew nothing from him but a preoccupied nod. And John Saunders was little more satisfactory. Both of them allowed me to end in silence. They both seemed to be thinking deeply.

"I must say you two are a great audience," I said presently, perhaps rather childishly nettled.

"It's a very serious matter," said John Saunders, and I realized that it was not my crony but the secretary to the treasury of his Britannic majesty's government at Nassau that was talking. As he spoke he looked across at Charlie Webster, almost as if forgetting me. "Something should be done about it, eh, Charlie?" he continued.

"—— traitor!" roared Charlie once more employing that British adjective. And then he turned to me:

"Look here old pal, I'll make a bargain with you, if you like. I suppose you're keen for that other treasure now, eh?"

"I am," said I, rather stiffly.

"Well, then, I'll go after it with you—on one condition. You can keep the treasure, if you'll give me Tobias. It would do my heart good to get him, as you had the chance of doing that afternoon. Whatever were you doing to miss him?"

"I proposed to myself the satisfaction of making good that mistake," I said, "on our next meeting. I feel I owe it to the poor old captain."

"Never mind; hand the captain's rights over to me—and I'll help you all I know with your treasure. Besides, Tobias is a job for an Englishman—eh, John? It's a matter of 'king and country' with me. With you it would be mere private vengeance. With me it will be an execution; with you it would be a murder. Isn't that so, John?"

"Exactly," John nodded.

"Since you were away," Charlie began again, "I've bought the prettiest yawl you ever set eyes on—the Flamingo—forty-five over all, and this time the very fastest boat in the harbor. Yes! she's faster even than the Susan B. Now I've a holiday due me in about a fortnight. Say the word, and the Flamingo's yours for a couple of months, and her captain too. I make only that one condition."

"All right, Charlie," I agreed; "he's yours."

Whereat Charlie shot out a huge paw like a shoulder of mutton and grabbed my hand with as much fervor as though I had saved his life or done him some other unimaginable kindness. And as he did so his broad, sweet smile came back again. He was thinking of Tobias.

While Charlie Webster was arranging his affairs so that he might be able to take his holiday with a free mind I busied myself with provisioning the Flamingo, and in casually chatting with one and another along the water front, in the hope of gathering some hint that might guide us on our coming expedition. I thought it possible, too, that chance might thus bring me some information as to the recent movements of Tobias.

In this way I made the acquaintance of several old salts, both white and black, one or two of whom time and their neighbors had invested with a legendary savor of the old "wrecking days," which, if rumor speaks true, are not entirely vanished from the remoter corners of the islands. But either their romantic halos were entirely due to imaginative gossip, or they themselves were too shrewd to be drawn, for I got nothing out of them to my purpose.

One afternoon in the course of these rather fruitless if interesting investigations among the picturesque shipyards of Bay street I had wandered farther along that historic water front than is customary with sightseeing pedestrians, and had come to where the road begins to be left alone with the sea, except for a few country houses here and there among the surrounding scrub—when my eye was caught by a little store that seemed to have strayed away from the others—a small timber erection painted in blue and white with a sort of sea-wildness and loneliness about it, and with large, naive lettering across its lintel announcing itself as an "Emporium" (I think that was the word) "of Marine Curiosities."

I pushed open the door. There was no one there. The little store was evidently left to take care of itself. Inside it was like an old curiosity shop of the sea, every available inch of space, rough tables and walls littered and hung with the queer and lovely bric-a-brac of the sea. Presently a tiny girl came in, as it seemed, from nowhere and said she would fetch her father. In a moment or two he came, a tall, weathered Englishman of the sailor type, brown and lean, with lonely blue eyes.

"You don't seem afraid of thieves," I remarked.

"It ain't a jewelry store," he said.

"You Don't Seem Afraid of Thieves."

with the curious soft sing-song intonation of the Nassau "conch."

"That's just what I was thinking it was," I said.

"I know what you mean," he replied, his lonely face lighting up as faces do at unexpected understanding in a stranger. "Of course there are some that feel that way, but they're few and far between."

"Not enough to make a fortune out of?"

"Oh! I do pretty well," he said; "I mustn't complain. Money's not everything, you see, in a business like this. There's going after the things, you know. One's got to count that in too."

I looked at him in some surprise. I had met something even rarer than the things he traded in. I had met a merchant of dreams, to whom the mere handling of his merchandise seemed sufficient profit. "There's going after the things, you know. One's got to count that in too."

Naturally we were neck-deep in talk in a moment. I wanted to hear all he cared to tell me about "going after the things"—such "things"—and he was nothing loth, as he took up one strange or beautiful object after another, his face aglow, and he quite evidently without a thought of doing business, and told me all about them—how and where he got them, and so forth.

"But," he said presently, encouraged by my unfeigned interest, "I should like to show you a few rarer things I have in the house, and which I wouldn't sell or even show to everyone. If you'd honor me by taking a cup of tea we might look them over."

So we left the little store, with its door unlocked as I had found it, and a few steps brought us to a little house I had not before noticed, with a neat garden in front of it, all the garden beds symmetrically bordered with conch shells. Shells were evidently the simple-hearted fellow's mania, his revelation of the beauty of the world. Here in a neat parlor, also much decorated with shells, tea was served to us by the little girl I had first seen and an elder sister, who, I gathered, made all the lonely dreamer's family. Then, shyly pressing on me a cigar, he turned to show me the promised treasures. He also told me more of his manner of finding them, and of the long trips which he had to take in seeking them, to out-of-the-way cays and in dangerous waters.

He was showing me the last and rarest of his specimens. He had kept, he said, the best to the last. To me, as a layman, it was not nearly so attractive as other things he had shown me—little more to my eye than a rather commonplace though pretty shell; but he explained that it was found, or had so far been found, only in one spot in the islands, a lovely, seldom-visited cay several miles to the northeast of Andros Island.

"What is it called?" I asked, for it was part of our plan for Charlie to do a little duck shooting on Andros, before we tackled the business of Tobias and the treasure.

"It's called —— Cay nowadays," he answered, "but it used to be called Short Shrift Island."

"Short Shrift Island!" I cried in spite of myself, immediately annoyed at my lack of presence of mind.

"Certainly," he rejoined, looking a little surprised but evidently without suspicion. He was too simple and too taken up with his shell.

"It is such an odd name," I said, trying to recover myself.

"Yes! those old pirate chaps certainly did think up some of the rummiest names."

"One of the pirate haunts, was it?" I queried with assumed indifference.

"Supposed to be. But one hears that of every other cay in the Bahamas. I take no stock in such yarns. My shells are all the treasure I expect to find."

"What did you call that shell?" I asked.

He told me the name, but I forgot it immediately. Of course I had asked it only for the sake of learning more precisely about Short Shrift Island. He told me innocently enough just where it lay.

STRONGER TONE IN BOTH SPOT AND CONTRACT FURNACE COKE

Quotations Edging Upward From $4, Which Rules on Present Sales.

ACTIVITY IS DISPLAYED

In Negotiations for Second Half Furnace Contracts; Sliding Scale Propositions Being Given Consideration; Higher Coal Prices May Come Later

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, June 11—While there is no heavier demand for coke a stronger feeling obtains among coke operators. The change in attitude involves both prompt coke and contract coke for the second half of the year. As to prompt coke, the general quotation is $4.00—and a few sales have been made at this figure. One sale at $3.90, for delivery to the end of the month, is regarded as exceptional, the seller being particularly anxious to effect a sale. A few operators are quoting $4.25 without any great expectation that the quotation will lead to sales.

While many operators with monthly adjustment contracts agreed with their customers on $4.00 as a settling price for May and then later for June deliveries, there is little disposition to sell for the month of July at that price, the reason assigned being that there is likely to be considerable interruption to production. In all previous years Independence Day has acted to curtail production because of the extensive celebrations indulged in. On account of prohibition going into effect July 1 it is thought quite possible that many of the men may engage in extensive celebrations the latter part of June, prolonging the celebrations until the supply of intoxicants is exhausted. As the present settling basis, however, is $4.00, and there have been no active negotiations for July coke, the current value may be set at $4.00. As to foundry coke the former range of quotations holds good, some indifferent brands being available for spot or prompt shipment at $4.50 while good brands readily command $5.00, making coke values quotable as follows:

Furnace	$4.00
Foundry	$4.50@$5.00

Negotiations for second half furnace coke contracts are becoming more active. Many propositions are being considered, chiefly of the sliding scale order, but it seems to be more difficult than usual to formulate a scale contract that would prove interesting to both parties. There are rumors that one or two contracts have already been closed, but the operators said to be involved refuse to admit that such is the case.

Some furnace interests have claimed that they can buy furnace coke at the flat price of $4.00 for delivery over the entire second half, but these statements are not credited, unless they refer to coke of decidedly indifferent quality. The furnaces in question may be trying to buy good coke at the poor quality price.

Several eastern furnaces have stated that if they cannot buy Connellsville coke for second half at $3.85 or thereabouts they will not patronize the region but will buy by-product coke in the east. It is not known what prices are being asked for such coke, but there are two producers in position to offer a considerable tonnage, Bethlehem and Midvale. Bethlehem sold coke some time ago and on account of oven difficulty failed to make satisfactory deliveries, but the contract now offered is an ironclad one, judged to be tight enough to protect the buyer's interest. Midvale production has not begun, but production at a fairly heavy rate is expected before the end of July.

As to sliding scale contracts, some furnaces are understood to have intimated that they would consider propositions on the basis of seven to one, based on basic pig iron at Valley furnaces, but this is out of the question since at the outside it would make only $3.68 for coke at the present time, taking basic iron at the present nominal quotation of $25.75. It is reported that some operators might sell at six to one. As basic pig iron is really about $25.00, Valley, this would make $4.17 for coke at the present time, and a minimum of $4.00 would probably be prescribed, to cover the possibility of basic iron going below $24.00. There is a possibility of operators trying to close at 5½ to one, with the concession that for the first couple months a special price would be made, $4.00 or $4.25.

The sanguine views of coke operators as to the prospective value of coke late in the year are based in part upon predictions as to the coal market. While $2.35 for mine-run is the circular price for the coal year, to April 1, 1920, and the price has been shaded more or less in the past few months, there are predictions that later in the year $2.35 will be forgotten entirely because of prices being much higher. In that case the coke operator would be better off selling coal unless the coke price were much above $4.00.

The pig iron markets have become somewhat more active, while at the same time there is somewhat more irregularity in prices, the demand producing more competition. For Pittsburg delivery pig iron can be bought at considerably less than Valley quotations plus the $1.40 freight since the Valley furnaces have been holding to March 21 prices fairly well, this being far from difficult when so many furnaces are out of blast. The Follansbee Brothers company is inquiring for about 3,000 tons of basic iron for delivery over the third quarter, while the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company is inquiring for 4,000 tons of foundry iron, June and July delivery, half to the company's Allegheny plant and half to the New Brighton plant. The market delivered Pittsburg remains quotable approximately as follows:

Bessemer	$23.35
Basic	$24.90@$25.40
Foundry	$26.40@$25.15
Forge	$25.40@$27.25
Malleable	$26.90@$28.65

IMPROVEMENT IN STEEL TRADE IS DOING BETTER THAN HOLDING ITS OWN

Midsummer Dullness Expected But a Resumption of Activity Will Come in August or September.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, June 11—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trades tomorrow as follows:

In a few finished steel lines demand has improved farther in the past week, while in others demand has been practically stationary. In no important direction is there any discernible falling off. Thus the improvement in steel that began about a month ago has done slightly better than hold its own in the past week. At the same time disposition manifested in some quarters to maintain that a general buying movement has started has practically disappeared. It is the common expectation that, as usual, there will be a midsummer dullness for the steel market. That, however, would not necessarily be unfavorable, since there would be no bar to the improvement being resumed in August or September.

Production of pig iron and of steel ingots is running at between 55 and 60 per cent of capacity, and there has been a slight increase in the past week. Barring such decline in production as may be caused by midsummer conditions, it is possible that the low point in production has now been passed.

While the United States Steel Corporation's statement of unfilled obligations showed a decrease in May of 518,376 tons, or about 100,000 tons less decrease than the average of the four preceding months, the actual shipping orders booked, covering both fresh orders and specifications against contract obligations, represented about 75 per cent of capacity and were the heaviest for several months. The large decrease in unfilled obligations simply indicates that buyers were not disposed to place contracts.

Pig iron has shown slightly increased activity in nearly all districts. The market has now gotten quite largely on a regular trading basis. There are many cases of northern districts competing with each other, and at Pittsburg this is so much the case that the Valley furnaces are largely out of control since they depart but little from the March 21st prices. Birmingham furnaces are quoting prices competitive with northern iron in most of their usual markets.

There is a stronger tone in the coke market.

NO COKE, SAND OR GRAVEL SHIPPED IN THE MONTH OF MAY

Unusual Record Contained in Report of Lockmaster Sweeney at Lock No. 4, Monongahela River.

Only for the shipments made by the Carnegie Steel company the coal traffic for the month of May through Lock No. 4 would have fallen far short of previous months. Exact figures show a total shipment of 20,788,000 bushels, while for April the figures were 20,079,000, an increase for May of 709,000 bushels.

Lockmaster James A. Sweeney's traffic report is as follows: Down, lockings 379; steamers 228; boats and barges 1,220; rafts one, other crafts 17; bushels of coal 20,788,000; timber 6,090 cubic feet; lumber 3,000 feet, board measure; merchandise six tons, passengers 25.

Going up, lockings 374; steamers 228; boats and barges 1,217; rafts 4; other crafts 16; steel rails two tons; lumber 51,200; passengers 30.

A peculiar feature of the report is the fact that no coke, sand or gravel were shipped during the month. Coke shipments have been supplanted by by-product coal which has been going to Clairton by barge in steadily increasing quantity. The lack of sand and gravel shipments at this time would indicate that concrete work in the upper river reaches is not very pressing at this time.

No new steamers were reported during the month, but it is expected that the Carnegie fleet will be augmented within the next few weeks with four all-steel steamers.
